Graphic facilitation is the use of simple, hand-drawn, visuals to support groups or individuals towards their goals. It is an engaging, inspiring and innovative technique perfect for the online and face to face classroom.

This interactive webinar will demonstrate visual tools to enhance language learning and incorporate life skills into the classroom. Delegates will be guided to draw their own basic icons, visual templates and graphic organisers to support language learning, note taking, future planning and study skills.

You'll leave with the confidence to create basic visuals for your classroom and support students to do the same. It will be active, fun, fast-paced, and will provide practical teaching tips for immediate classroom use.

Emily Bryson is an author, teacher educator and graphic facilitator with over twenty years teaching experience. She has written various print and digital materials, including National Geographic Learning's Voices series. Her online courses in Graphic Facilitation have been described as 'the nicest corner of the internet'. More at: www.EmilyBrysonELT.com.
